

LOUIS WINE COLLECTION

In the exclusive Italian American-operated entertainment clubs of 1950s New York, dining room wine lists looked markedly different to Manchester restaurant lists of 2024.

Mid-century cellars were universally dominated by the classic regions of France: Champagne, Bordeaux and Burgundy. These were supplemented on more adventurous lists by a few wines from contemporary American immigrants’ European origins – Hungary, Germany and Spain – and, if you were lucky, a Tuscan or two. American wines featured, but had yet to develop their own identity, instead plagiarising their European inspirations; “California Burgundy” was a popular choice, today very much prohibited! South American wines rarely made it beyond their own national borders, and wines from South Africa, Australia and New Zealand were decades away from appearing on the world stage.

Our collection reflects this evocative background, while widening the net to offer more regional diversity for today’s wine enthusiast. We offer only exceptional wines, sourced and stored with care and respect, from some of the world’s most esteemed estates, some in large formats and rare vintages for you to share and savour.
